Dear Mr. Dalzell:

In support of making safety the most fundamental and critical element of how we conduct our business, the Company has developed new safety principles. These principles emphasize building a trust based culture, encouraging open and honest communication, understanding underlying causes in order to prevent recurrence, treating safety incidents as learning opportunities, increasing recognition and rewarding of safe behavior, and adopting a behavior-based approach to discipline which decreases the emphasis on discipline.

Under these new principles, discipline for safety-related incidents will only be considered when an employee acts in a reckless manner, demonstrates a pattern of carelessness or non-compliance, puts themselves, their co-workers or the public at risk by intentionally violating a Key to Life, or violates the Code of Conduct.

The parties met recently to discuss the new safety principles, and in particular, the limited role of discipline and the use of a behavior based approach. In the implementation of this new approach, the parties agree to the following as it relates to safety-related incidents.

1. Non-disciplinary safety discussions are the preferred approach to learn from an incident and develop positive approaches for eliminating similar incidents. These one-on-one discussions are opportunities for open and honest discussion of safety incidents with a focus on understanding and learning. Safety discussions are not considered as discipline or coaching and counselings under the Positive Discipline Agreement.
2. The parties agree that discipline for safety-related incidents will only be considered when an employee acts in a reckless manner, demonstrates a pattern of carelessness or non-compliance, puts themselves, their co-workers or the public at risk by intentionally violating a Key to Life, or violates the Code of Conduct.
3. Although there will be significantly less disciplinary action issued with this approach, the Union recognizes the Company's right to issue discipline and discharge for safety related incidents on the basis set forth above. The Union reserves the right to grieve any discipline or demotion.
